(1) Report Description

Dr. R. Sripriya, Women Scientist of Guru Nanak College, has gone for Wet lab work associated with Test Animal (Wistar rats) at Saveetha Medical College Project entitled "Smart Dressing Based on Collagen Exhibiting Antibacterial, Antiinflammatory, and Anti-collagenase Activity" involves development of collagen based dressing for diabetic dermal wounds. The developed dressing was checked for its efficacy in wound healing in animal model for which the animal house facility of Saveetha medical college has been utilized. A total of (36+10) 46 animals were purchased from M/s. Biogen Laboratory Animal Facility, Bangalore. To check the dosage, to meet the mortality if occurs and STZ-resistance dosage an extra of 10 animals were purchased for the study. The experimental protocol involved induction of diabetes in male Wistar rats for which, a total of 36 rats divided into 3 groups were induced diabetics via single intraperitoneal injection of streptozotocin (STZ 50mg/kg). After 48 hrs of induction and confirmation of sugar levels. Wistar rats with fasting blood glucose level above 200 mg/dL has been considered diabetic (Canepa ET et.al., 1990). For wound creation, animals were anesthetized by Ketamine: Xylazine, 80:10mg/kg body weight) intraperitoneally, a full thickness wound of 1×1 cm<sup>2</sup> was created on the back of the animal (Tsao SM et.al., 2006). The wounds were then infected with ATCC stains of Pseudomonas aeruginosa and Staphylococcus aureus which was injected between thin muscle and paraspinus muscle. After 24hrs of infection animals were divided into 3 groups with 12 animals in each group on 4 different days of analysis (3rd, 7th, 14th, 21st day). Group 1 animals were treated with gauze dressing and group 2 animals were treated with plain collagen dressing and group 3 animals were treated with test dressing i.e collagen dressing containing PHMB and CMT. The cotton gauze and collagen dressing applied on wound were changed for every 72 hrs. On days of analysis, the samples shall be collected and following parameters were determined.

- 1) Wound area was determined from the initial day of experiment till the date of completion of the experiment and the progress of wound healing has been monitored.
- 2) Blood glucose levels were monitored from the initial day of experiment till the completion of experiment.
- 3) Histopathology (H&E, Massons trichrome) of the tissue collected from the wound site were examined and micrograph were prepared.
- 4) CFU count from the granulation tissues were analysed to determine the microbial population.
- 5) Immuno histochemical staining for spotting MMP-8, IL-1 $\alpha$ , TNF-  $\alpha$  were determine.

Overall results confirmed the effective healing efficacy of the developed dressing in healing diabetic dermal wounds.
